We are excited to announce that as of November 13, 2009, Concept to Volume B.V. (C2V) has become part of Thermo Fisher Scientific Inc. through acquisition. As a result, our micro-GC products and customized MEMS solutions will now be supported and sold under Thermo Fisher's premier Thermo Scientific brand. This acquisition is a major step toward enabling us to offer our products and solutions to serve a more extensive breadth of customer applications.

The combination of our industry leading micro-GC with Thermo Fisher's chromatography expertise provides an opportunity to offer a more fully integrated portfolio of chromatographic solutions than ever before. Furthermore, Thermo Fisher's breadth of products, services, and technological innovations greatly expand the systems and services that C2V has developed over the years. As always, we will be dedicated to providing our current and future customers with the most advanced solutions in MEMS-based chromatography.

From your perspective, only the company's name will change. All current products will continue to be fully supported with the same level of quality and service. Our manufacturing will remain at our current facility in Enschede, The Netherlands, and your primary contacts at C2V will continue to be your primary contacts at Thermo Fisher. Any existing contracts or commitments you have with us remain in effect.

You will quickly begin seeing the C2V name change over to the Thermo Scientific brand. Please visit Thermo Fisher at www.thermoscientific.com to get a better understanding of the extensive products and services found within Thermo Fisher's portfolio. We will continue to update you with our integration progress over the next several months, and we look forward to continuing and strengthening our successful business relationship with you in the future.

If you have any questions or concerns, please contact your current sales representative or anyone on the C2V management team.

Sincerely,

Best regards,

Job Elders
